HUENENBERG, Switzerland – September 28, 2007 - Alcon, Inc. (NYSE:ACL) announced today that the company has gained control of 76.9 percent of WaveLight's approximately 6.6 million issued and outstanding shares. As required by the German Security Purchase and Take-over Act, an additional two-week acceptance period will begin on September 29, 2007 and will continue through October 12, 2007. The company has received approvals from the competition authorities in Germany and Austria and is awaiting cartel clearances in China, Cyprus and Spain prior to closing of the transaction.

Also, Alcon has legally acquired 1.96 million WaveLight shares, or 29.9 percent of the issued and outstanding shares, either on the stock market or through direct purchase.

"We are pleased to have received broad acceptance from the WaveLight shareholders. By controlling more than 75 percent of the shares, once we obtain the other regulatory approvals we can begin the process of integrating WaveLight with Alcon's existing refractive business," said Cary Rayment, Alcon's chairman, president and chief executive officer. "We expect more WaveLight shareholders will accept our offer during this additional two-week acceptance period to ensure they can obtain the EUR 15 per share offer price."

"Alcon's friendly takeover offer is in the best interest of WaveLight shareholders and I am glad that the offer reached such a high level of acceptance," said Max Reindl, WaveLight's chief executive officer. "The combination of Alcon's global marketing, distribution and service platform with the ALLEGRETTO® laser and WaveLight's technological expertise will create a formidable force in the global refractive laser market."
